62 arrested in Times Square climate change protest

Times Square was flooded with protestors from Extinction Rebellion.

On Thursday morning, a massive climate change protest took place in New York City's Times Square. Sixty-two demonstrators have been arrested for civil disobedience so far, ABC reports.

It was reported that the protest started right before 10 a.m., forcing the closure of the intersections at Broadway and 46th street as well as Seventh Avenue and 44th street.

471 people have been arrested in London in the past couple of days as a result of the Extinction Rebellion protests.

The protestors were wearing life jackets, and in their midst was a green boat, which dropped an anchor reading, "Act Now." It has been reported that the protestors were wearing the logo of the activist group Extinction Rebellion.

Earlier this week, the same group doused Wall Street's iconic bull statue with red paint.

ABC reported that the protest was peaceful, and police were able to disperse the large crowd.

Right before noon, police pulled the boat away, the protestors left, and the traffic started up again.

New York City is not the only city hosting protests by Extinction Rebellion. Cities across the world — from Sydney to Berlin — are also staging their own events.

Reuters reported that in London, 471 people have been arrested in the past couple of days as a result of the Extinction Rebellion protests.

It is not clear how President Trump feels about the Extinction Rebellion, but UK Prime Minister Boris Johnson called the protestors "uncooperative crusties." BECCA GLASSER-BAKER

Nobel literature prize winners announced

2 Austrian writer Peter Handke won the 2019 Nobel Prize for Literature on Thursday and Polish author Olga Tokarczuk was named as the 2018 winner after a sexual assault scandal led to last year's award being postponed. The Swedish Academy which chooses the literature laureate said it had recognized Handke, 76, for a body of work including novels, essays and drama "that with linguistic ingenuity has explored the periphery and the specificity of human experience." Tokarczuk, 57, won for "a narrative imagination that with encyclopaedic passion represents the crossing of boundaries as a form of life," it said. Two prizes were awarded this year after last year's award was postponed over the scandal that led to the husband of an Academy member being convicted of rape. REUTERS

Iranian women attend first soccer match in 40 years

3 Iranian women watched the country's national soccer team for the first time in 40 years on Thursday, celebrating their long-awaited access to the national stadium but also paying tribute to the 'Blue Girl' fan who died last month. Iran, one of the traditional powerhouses of Asian football with a passionate fanbase, won their World Cup qualifying match against Cambodia 14-0 but the one-sided game will be remembered much more for the scenes in the stands. Waving flags, blowing vuvuzela plastic horns and displaying the team colours of red, green and white, over 3,000 women watched from a special women-only section in the Azadi Stadium. Women have been banned from watching men's games in Iran since shortly after the 1979 Islamic revolution. REUTERS

Migrant protesters occupy U.S.-Mexico border bridge

4 Migrants seeking asylum in the United States who are camped in a dangerous Mexican border town occupied a bridge to Brownsville, Texas on Thursday, leading U.S. authorities to close the crossing, witnesses and authorities said. Hundreds of the migrants have been sleeping for weeks on the end of the bridge in Matamoros, Mexico, a city known for gang violence and for cartels that control human trafficking. Many of those living in tents or on the sidewalk in a plaza abutting the bridge are awaiting court dates for hearings in the United States weeks or months later under a U.S. policy called the Migrant Protection Protocols (MPP). Video shot by a Reuters photographer showed men, women and children, some lying on blankets, midway across the bridge over the Rio Grande. REUTERS

Ex-cops get five-year probation for sex with detained teen

Eddie Martins and Richard Hall admitted to having sex with an 18-year-old who was in their custody.

BECCA GLASSER-BAKER

Two former cops were sentenced Thursday to five-years of probation after having sex in a police van with an 18-year-old woman they had arrested and detained.

Ex-NYPD officers Eddie Martins and Richard Hall pleaded guilty in August, and avoided incarceration despite requests from prosecutors. The pair faced charges of official misconduct and bribe receiving in connection to the case, which made headlines in September 2017. The woman has said the sexual encounter happened against her will.

Hall reportedly lashed out at his accuser, saying in court, "I did not rape or perform any forcible sex act. You're a liar. You created this circus so you could sue for $50 million... you should've been arrested for perjury... you're a disgrace to the #MeToo movement."

According to ABC, District Attorney Eric Gonzalez said, "This incident led to a change in New York law, closing a loophole that allowed officers to claim that sex with a detainee was consensual. Unfortunately, we could not apply that new law retroactively. While my office recommended prison time, we accept the court's sentence."

> "I did not rape or perform any forcible sex act. You're a liar. You created this circus so you could sue for $50 million...you should've been arrested for perjury... you're a disgrace to the #MeToo movement."
> Richard Hall reportedly lashed out at his accuser.

Outlets reported that Martins, 39, and Hall, 34, were formerly assigned to the NYPD's Brooklyn South Narcotics unit.

The investigation states on September 15, 2017, at 7: 30 p.m., the former officers were on duty in a Dodge Caravan, in plainclothes working on a buy-and-bust operation. They left their post without the authorization and drove to a park called Calvert Vaux Park, which is located in Gravesend, Brooklyn.

Right after 8 p.m., the former officers told three occupants to exit a vehicle and asked if they had drugs on them. The young woman who told them that she had marijuana and Klonopin pills on her.

She was arrested and the other two people were let go, according to the report.

It was reported that in the van, Martins, and Hall performed a "sex act" on her. After this incident they took the woman into the Coney Island area and released her, giving her back the pills. The former officers did not report this to their supervisor or anyone. They also had no authority to release the detainee, according to the indictment.

DNA recovered from the woman matched the officers.

The charges of rape were dropped in March because a judge ruled the woman's story too inconsistent.

Hall and Martins pled guilty to nine counts of official misconduct and two accounts of third-degree bribes.

Two businessmen linked to Trump Ukraine scandal arrested on U.S. charges

The two worked closely with Trump's lawyer Rudy Giuliani.

Two foreign-born Florida businessmen who have been helping President Donald Trump's personal lawyer investigate political rival Joe Biden have been arrested on charges of funneling foreign money to U.S. political candidates and a pro-Trump election committee, authorities said on Thursday.

The arrests were the latest dramatic development in a political saga that threatens Trump's presidency.

They coincide with a Democratic-led U.S. House of Representatives impeachment inquiry centered on the Republican president's request in a July phone call for Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelensky to investigate Biden, a leading contender for the November 2020 Democratic presidential nomination.

The businessmen, Lev Parnas and Igor Fruman, were arrested and charged in connection with a federal criminal case involving campaign finance laws, federal prosecutors in Manhattan said. Each was charged with two counts of conspiracy, one count of false statements and one of falsification of business records.

The two men were donors to a pro-Trump fundraising committee and the president's personal lawyer, Rudy Giuliani, has said they helped him as he sought to investigate former Vice President Biden and Biden's son Hunter.

Parnas is a Ukrainian businessman. Fruman is a real estate investor who was born in Belarus. Both, according to various media accounts, helped introduce Giuliani into top Ukrainian political circles.

Parnas and Fruman in May 2018 contributed $325,000 to a pro-Trump political action committee called America First Action, and the donation was falsely reported as coming from a purported natural gas company, according to the indictment.

The two men falsely claimed the company, called GEP, was "a real business enterprise" and that "its major purpose is energy trading, not political activity," the indictment said. In fact, it said, the company had no real business.

The two were arrested at Dulles airport in Virginia before a planned flight to Vienna on Wednesday night, sources familiar with the matter said.

Parnas and Fruman were accused of conspiring to "funnel foreign money to candidates for federal and state office," according to a federal court filing in New York.

> "Parnas and Igor helped me on certain things. They helped me with logistics. They know the Ukraine, they speak Russian. They helped me locate people in a few cases."
> Rudy Giuliani

John Dowd, the lawyer for Parnas and Fruman, declined to comment on the charges. Dowd previously represented Trump in former Special Counsel Robert Mueller's investigation that detailed Russian interference in the 2016 U.S. presidential campaign to boost Trump's candidacy.

Giuliani did not immediately return a request for comment. REUTERS

Doctors Urge Knee Pain Sufferers

"Don't Get ANY Surgery Until You SeeThis…"

After Years Of Intense Study, NYC Medical Clinic Finally Reveals It's Best "Treatment Formula" For Helping Knee Arthritis Sufferers... Especially When So Many Other Treatments Have Failed

NEW YORK CITY - If you are even remotely interested in discovering how the latest scientific discoveries can possibly help your knee pain... then this is going is be the most exciting information you ever read.

Here is why: Knee pain can not only be brutal... it's complex. In other words, it's not a simple, easy fix.

But I'm sure you already know that. Or you wouldn't be reading this.

That's the bad news.

Now for some good news...

Over the years, NYC Pain MD has treated countless knee pain sufferers. And in that time have been able to constantly improve.

And we have come up with a treatment formula that we have found works best and helps the most patients.

This formula has reduced or even eliminated the pain in many. Some were scheduled for knee replacement surgery and felt good enough to cancel their surgery.

It's amazing when patients who were once in excruciating pain... start feeling better. And start walking again. And playing golf. Or tennis. And finally getting their lives back.

Especially when they had gone to other doctors and tried so many other things.

So many had given up hope.

Sound familiar? If it does... check this out...

The Treatment Formula

While I can't give you the entire treatment formula here (there is not enough space and WAY too complicated) I can give you the basics. And more important... I can tell you what it might be able to do for YOU.

The first and most important part of the formula is: PATIENT SELECTION.

This means, NYC Pain MD has a detailed screening process to tell who is most likely to be helped by their treatments... and who is not.

If you qualify, you have the opportunity to move forward and experience the worldclass treatments that NYC Pain MD offers.

If you do not, NYC Pain MD will tell you what they think your best options are and help you find the right doctor for you.

NYC Pain MD "Treatment Formula" A protocol of advanced medical treatments that has already helped thousands.

If you qualify, NYC Pain MD offers some of the most advanced medical treatments available today all using the most advanced imaging technology including:

- Viscosupplementation (gel injections)
- Platelet Rich Plasma (PRP)
- Stem Cell Therapy (Lipogems)
- Genicular Knee Block
- And more.

Once again, there is not enough space to go into detail about all these procedures... but here are some things you MUST KNOW....

Viscosupplementation is where a doctor introduces a gel-like medicine directly into the joint space. This helps to lubricate the joints often relieving some, most or even all of your pain. Results can last for 6 months to several years.

Many have had these treatments without good results. However, NYC Pain MD feels this is because doctors often do these "gel injections" without advanced imaging to guide them. Research shows they will often miss the joint. If the joint is missed... it is impossible for the treatment to work.

NYC Pain MD has spared no expense and used advanced imaging to guide the injections assuring the medicine gets into the joint. We frequently get results when this treatment was a failure done elsewhere.

The second thing you must know is... our treatment plans are custom made for every patent. And we have all these treatments offered in the same place. Many times you will get the best results from multiple treatments. At NYC Pain MD your doctors will all be there and will all know each other and you and your case. They work together and give you the best treatments and care without you having to go anywhere else.

The ability to select the right patients and then have the potential to give them any or all of these treatments... with all the necessary medical technology... under one roof... has allowed NYC Pain MD to get better results than they thought possible.

Here's What You Should Do Next

If you suffer with knee pain... and any of this made sense to you... NYC Pain MD would like to offer you a No-cost screening. That screening is the first step in our "Treatment Formula."

You will get to see a doctor and ask any questions you have. Your doctor will take the first steps to see if you qualify for treatments and give you recommendations.

The best thing is... you will finally get direction. You will know what's going on and what is your best course of action… step-by-step. The treatments will be explained in detail and you will breathe a big sigh of relief finally knowing what's going on and what can or cannot be done.

There is so much we want to say to help you... but I'm out of space. Give us a call at 877-296-6310 and take the first step. That step is free without obligation.

Dan Auerbach on the return of the Black Keys

"We just got to work."
PAT KING

Dan Auerbach and Patrick Carney are like those friends of yours who take long relaxing vacations only to remain connected to their work while they are lounging by the pool. Even though their arena-filling rock band, The Black Keys, had been on a "break" in the 5-year span before the release of this year's "Let's Rock," the two restless and adventurous musicians had hardly been taking it easy.

"Pat said that he and I together have produced something like 60 records in the past 5 or 6 years," says Dan Auerbach, the band's lead singer and guitarist, with a laugh. "I didn't realize that until he told me that. It's not like we weren't doing anything in that time. But we definitely needed a break."

While in recent years fans haven't been treated to that Black Keys release to rattle their car speakers, Auerbach and Carney have both been ever-present in shaping records by such popular artists as Cage The Elephant and Michelle Branch, as well as numerous recording projects and songwriting credits.

With their last album "Turn Blue" in 2015, the band had reached a sort of apex that fans of the band's earlier work may have never imagined from their rough lo-fi days that saw the Akron, Ohio duo bashing out blues riffs in their garage. In fact, it was a logical continuation of the direction the band had started on when they began working with producer Dange Mouse for their album "Attack and Release" in 2008. Ever since then, they have shifted from being the small band that the indie kids cherished, into one of the most dynamic forces in popular music, melding instantly recognizable blues-based garage rock while injecting a healthy dose of psychedelia. Furthermore, The Black Keys are one of the bands making the case for guitar-driven rock and roll at a time when like-minded groups are few and far between.

But time off wasn't something that dulled the band's creative drive. As Auerbach explains, the only hurdle in the way of making "Let's Rock" was actually getting into a room together with Carney to make it. By that measure, you can almost read into the title as both members getting into position and saying those words in jinx-like fashion: "Let's Rock."

ALL PHOTOS ALYSSE GAFKJEN

"It was pretty simple. Pat and I just got together and started recording. We didn't really talk about it. We just got to work. It felt like the less we talked about it, the better," says Auerbach.

The resulting album finds the middle distance between the sprawling acid-soaked guitar heroics on "Turn Blue" with the direct power and tunefulness of albums like "Brothers" and "El Camino." And with 12 more songs in the group's arsenal, Auerbach and Carney are getting back into what it really means to have The Black Keys be an active band again.

"The thing is, you can't just make a record," says Auerbach. "We have to make a record and then we have to dedicate at least two years of our lives to touring and promoting. We stopped touring because it's just not healthy. We had to commit to the idea of getting out there. Which is where we are today."

Ever since songs like "Lonely Boy" and "Gold on the Ceiling" from the 2011 album "El Camino" seemed to dominate the world, the band has become a hit-making force to be reckoned with and their fingerprint is one that should not be downplayed as one of the most important influences in popular music. Can you honestly remember a time when a Black Keys song wasn't played as bumper music to a sports broadcast or their likeness wasn't used in a car commercial? While hearing their own music on the radio or being used by various outlets is humbling, Auerbach is a little less enthusiastic about the cheap imitators that sprung up in the wake of their success.

"There is so much of that because the TV stations or the channels or corporations, they don't want to pay to use our songs so they pay someone to do like a sh--ty f--king version of 'Howlin' For You.' There's a million of those that we hear constantly. There was this one guy who was so f--king stupid. He owned a casino or something. He bragged on Facebook [and said] 'check this out, I had these guys rip off a Black Keys song for my new commercial. What do you think?' We took a screenshot and sent it to a lawyer and sued him. What a f--king idiot!"

But as the saying goes, imitation is the best form of flattery. So, at least there is a silver lining to all of this?

"The thing that I like is that it sounds so sh--ty it makes me feel good about us," Auerbach says. "It's like muzak versions of our songs. We should just acquire the rights to a bunch of Black Keys rip-off songs and make a compilation [laughs]."

It's always commendable when a band can maintain its large and loyal fan base while taking continuous risks with every record release. Auerbach understands this and is thankful for their fans being open to the band's need to expand their sound each time they step into the studio.

"We're always looking for a new sound. We never want to do what we did before. That's the reason why we're still here. I think that if we were just making the same record over and over again we probably would have stopped a long time ago," says Auerbach. "I hope that they appreciate and enjoy the twists and turns. Ultimately, I'm not thinking about anything but the music when we're making a record. It's the only thing I'm thinking about."

The Black Keys hit Barclays Center this Tuesday, October 15 with Modest Mouse.

Kim Gordon on going solo with "No Home Record"

The first solo record from the Sonic Youth legend is out today

PAT KING

NATALIE MANTINI

After decades of pushing the boundaries of punk rock with her enormously influential band Sonic Youth as well as creating challenging and renowned works as a visual artist, perhaps the most radical statement Kim Gordon could make at this point is to release an album with only her name written down the spine. Released today on Matador records, Gordon's first solo album, "No Home Record," is nine songs that represent an artist truly unbound by preconceptions. From the first sonic blasts of the industrial-tinged "Sketch Artist," the record practically begs you to form an opinion before it goes off balance with each song that follows. It's similar to that feeling when you exit the bumper cars at a carnival and are happy the seat belts worked yet immediately want to go again.

When I spoke with Gordon over the phone, she explained that the record had come about after randomly meeting with producer Justin Raisen, who has worked with Charli XCX, Angel Olsen and Ariel Pink. To her recollection, working on a record with Raisen just seemed like something fun to do in between art shows and her work in the avant-garde duo Body/Head with musician Bill Nace.

"I didn't really think about it that much," Gordon says of the project coming to fruition. "I wasn't that busy at the time. It started when I accidentally met Justin, who was trying to get me to come over and sing on this other project. He kept sending me stuff. I was kind of skeptical and curious. So finally he sent me a piece of music that I thought I could do vocals on and add to what was already there. I did that and he took some leftover bits and put some trashy drums on it and bass to it. He sent it back to me and it was kind of trashy and cool."

After Gordon added some guitar parts and the recording was mixed, that song turned out to be one of the central tracks on the album, "Murdered Out." From there, this kind of spontaneous workflow energized Gordon and she was ready to focus on what would become "No Home Record."

"It was sort of an experiment for me just to see what it could be," explains Gordon. "Justin is sort of positive about everything. It was almost like a challenge [to say] 'make something out of this mother f–ker!' I knew that with his expertise as a producer, that's what you want him to do, elevate what you do. I thought it was interesting to take things that were improv and shape them into a song."

The album teeters between beat-heavy industrial tracks as well as the Lower East Side No-Wave inspired punk Gordon helped create with Sonic Youth. All throughout, Gordon muses on the modern malaise of this current era and the devaluation of the creative spirit on the biting track, "Don't Play It Back." In that song, she delivers puzzle pieces of free associated poetry on how artistic expression is being taken for granted. "I used to have a gallery," she sings, "Now it's just a floor shop. I hope the world don't turn away."

"It really captures a feeling of being at a coffee place or something and hearing different bits of conversations," Gordon explains of the track. "It's about gentrification and the ideas around 'are we really free' and the illusions of choice."

For Gordon, the thought that anyone would ever pay her to express herself creatively had never entered her mind when she was initially starting out. Art on the fringes was what seemed the most alive and rewarding at the time and it still is today.

"I started [in punk rock in the Lower East Side] because I thought it was more pure and free than the art world at the time in the 80s which was having a big commercial boon. No-Wave music, which inspired me, seemed more like a form of expression and nobody thought of it as commercial," says Gordon.

As of right now, there are no plans to tour behind "No Home Record" until at least 2020. While she wasn't busy with art shows before, Gordon is now currently working on a new collection that will keep her busy throughout the rest of the year.

"I have a show now that I have to work on that opens in January," she says. "So after that, I'll start putting a band together and that kind of thing."

Happ, Hicks among major questions for Yankees ahead of 2019 ALCS

The American League Championship Series kicks off Saturday.

JOE PANTORNO
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

By the time the New York Yankees take the field for the 2019 American League Championship Series, they will have had five days worth of rest after sweeping the Minnesota Twins out of the playoffs.

Their dominant showing in the first round has further built their stock as a World Series favorites, especially since the Los Angeles Dodgers are out of the picture and the Houston Astros are having such trouble with the Tampa Bay Rays.

Things are looking good in the Bronx.

But that doesn't mean that manager Aaron Boone is exempt from some roster tweaking.

Heading into the ALCS, one of the biggest things to keep an eye on when it comes to the Yankees is their starting-rotation plans.

Boone wasn't presented with much of an issue in the best-of-five ALDS as he was able to roll out James Paxton, Masahiro Tanaka, and Luis Severino with little issue.

The starters combined for just 13.2 innings of work over the three games, but they posted a 2.64 ERA in the process.

Due to Tanaka's road struggles, he will get the ball in either Game 2 (if the Yankees are playing the Rays) or Game 3 (if they play the Astros).

Shifting to a seven-game series, the Yankees will need four starters. It just depends on whether Boone will trust J.A. Happ or decide to use reliever Chad Green as an opener.

The left-handed starter struggled for most of the 2019 season. However, he hit his stride in his final six outings (five starts) of the season.

In 32.1 innings, Happ posted a 2.23 ERA with 35 strikeouts while his opponents hit just .177 against him.

His performance in the 2018 ALDS against the Boston Red Sox though will provide a cautionary tale for Boone. Happ lasted just two innings in Game 1 of that series, allowing five runs on four hits.

Green has allowed one run in 5.2 playoff innings dating back to last postseason.

Elsewhere on the roster, center fielder Aaron Hicks claims that he's fully healthy and ready to go after recovering from an elbow strain that was originally believed to have ended his season.

Hicks suffered the injury in early August before suffering a setback in September.

He's played in just 59 games this season, slashing .235/.325/.443 with 12 home runs and 36 RBI.

That's not exactly the kind of year the Yankees wanted after signing him to a seven-year, $70 million contract back in February.

Boone admitted that he "is very much in consideration" for an ALCS roster spot, but given his lack of play this season, he might be utilized as a switch-hitting option off the bench.

That could mean the Yankees would have to take Cameron Maybin off the roster. The veteran journeyman went deep in the ninth inning of the clinching Game 3 of the ALDS on Monday.

Should the Yankees opt to hold onto him, Tyler Wade becomes the next logical roster cut.
